GARDENS ARE FOR PEOPLE

SAN FRANCISCO LANDSCAPE GARDEN SHOW

Garden designs from the traditional and classical to the innovative will be on display at the San Francisco Landscape Garden Show, making its debut April 16 through 20 in Pier 2 at Fort Mason Center.

The one and one-quarter acre site will include an extraordinary selection of ideas in the thirty gardens planned by foremost Bay Area landscape designers and architects; a tribute to the late Thomas D. Church, one of the greatest garden makers of the century, whose elegant designs are well-known in the San Francisco Bay Area; an "Enabling Garden" designed especially for the handicapped and elderly; a Garden Market Place offering fine garden tools, pots, books, and other gardening items; floral and horticultural demonstrations; a pavilion area for presentation of information by garden clubs, environmental groups and plant societies; miniature fantasy gardens created by San Francisco schoolchildren from grades 3 through 6; and a restaurant and cafe for refreshments.

Sponsored by the Friends of Recreation and Parks, a volunteer group dedicated to the improvement of the city's recreation and parks facilities, the show's planned objectives are to illustrate exemplary design, to educate and interest the public in horticulture, and to serve as a forum for Northern California gardening enthusiasts. Proceeds will endow improvements to Golden Gate Park.

Garrett Eckbo, landscape architect and Professor Emeritus of the University of California at Berkeley, designed the master plan for the show. It features a serpentine tree-lined path through the pier from which to view the focal point of the show—the gardens. Several exhibits will demonstrate the use of local drought-tolerant species such as California holly, ceanothus, manzanita and madrone. An Asian garden and an herb garden featuring trompe l'oeil and topiary will also be included.

The show's theme is "Gardens Are for People," inspired by the book of the same name by Thomas Church, described by Eckbo as "the last great traditional designer and the first great modern designer." The Thomas D. Church exhibit will incorporate many of his design elements in a garden setting. Photographs of his work and his architectural drawings will be part of this retrospective honoring California's illustrious garden maker.

Another highlight of the show will be a Kinder-Garten created by California designer Antonio Torrice, who specializes in creating "Living and Learning Environments" for children. He believes that children should play a role in decorating their own spaces. Kinder-Garten will demonstrate how a small plot of land can be used as an educational tool. Those who view it will see a small piece of time through the eyes of a six year old. The garden will include vegetables, flowers, a rabbit pen, and the simulated use of water and wind.

Children from forty San Francisco schools will compete for awards in several categories, including Most Creative, Funniest, Funkiest, Most Beautiful, Best Fantasy Garden, Most Secret Garden, Most Artistic, Most Formal and Best City Garden.

The function of "The Enabling Garden" is horticultural therapy. It is designed especially for the handicapped and elderly. Bonnie Leukowitz, a quadriplegic gardener, is contributing design ideas, and will explain to visitors her special techniques and tools adapted for gardening.

The Landscape Garden Show has received support from the community: Chevron Corporation is underwriting the Thomas D. Church Exhibit; The Enabling Garden is partially funded by Pacific Bell; other major donors include Bothin Helping Fund and Stanley Smith Horticultural Trust.

Mrs. Betsy Church and Mrs. Louise M. Davies are Honorary Chairs of the show. A Gala Preview will be held the evening of April 15, with tickets at $75 per person.

The show will be open daily from 10am to 7pm. General admission, $5; groups of ten or more, $3.50 per person, pre-paid and scheduled in advance; children under 12 admitted free. For information, call 221-1310.

BAY AREA NONPROFITS HONORED

Bay Area nonprofit agencies will participate in a program recognizing their contributions at The San Francisco Foundation Celebration this month at Fort Mason Center. Invited guests joining in the festivities will include representatives of county government, donors to the Foundation, community leaders and other grantmakers. While the event is not open to the public, it is certainly the community at large that benefits. The purpose of this annual gathering is to introduce San Francisco Foundation grantees to each other and to other potential funders, with the hope that their capability to provide services will be enhanced by both networking and additional financial support.

Over 200 organizations will present video displays, photographic exhibitions and published materials, as well as demonstrations. And those who work in the various agencies will be on hand to talk about what they do and how it serves the community.

"Fort Mason is a perfect setting because the development of the urban park was first supported with San Francisco Foundation funds," said Martin Paley, Foundation director. "The work nonprofit agencies perform in the community too often goes unrecognized," said Paley. "We hope to focus attention on who they are and the essential services they provide to both solve pressing social problems and enhance the quality of our lives. From the list of participants, each of us can quickly spot how our own lives have been touched by their work. In the Bay Area alone there are over 3,400 nonprofit organizations with a total of $2.5 billion in annual expenditures. Clearly, nonprofits play a significant part in the region's economy."

Last year, The San Francisco Foundation approved $30,225,344 to nonprofit agencies in the Bay Area. The Foundation's grant-making throughout the five Bay Area counties, from programs to increase the supply of affordable housing to help for teenage fathers, and from support of cultural institutions to improving math education in the Oakland schools, is representative of the breadth of the local nonprofit sector.

This is the third annual celebration for The San Francisco Foundation's grantees. "We applaud the diversity of commitment and activity represented by the exhibitions and attendance at this event," said Paley, "and we hope it provides a showcase for the amazing wealth of services in the Bay Area."

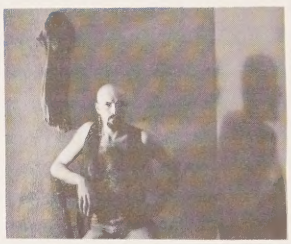
PHOTOGRAPHIC SYMPOSIUM AND PRINT EXHIBIT

Those serious about photography will want to attend the Western States Photographic Symposium and Print Competition at Fort Mason Center's Firehouse, April 18 through 21. The four days of educational programming are designed to improve technical skills in lighting and composition. Sponsored by the Professional Photographers of California, this is the first time this event has been held in Northern California.

The first two days will be dedicated to print judging sessions presented in a program format. As the judges view each original image, that same image will be shown on a 12' by 12' screen for the enjoyment of the audience. Comments of judges and print chairmen will be heard over a loudspeaker system, involving the audience in the judging process. Every half-hour, there will be a three-minute commentary by a member of the Judging Committee, giving his or her view on the importance of composition and lighting—the two necessary ingredients for creating a memorable photographic image.

The last two days of the event will feature programs and workshops presented by master craftsmen. The four keynote programs are: Mario Casilli's "The Glamour of Illustration," exploring his application of the concept of proper lighting; Gary Bernstein's "People Photography," emphasizing the production of lasting images; Warren Motts' "An Enthusiastic Approach to Commercial Photography," illustrating methods of photographing with emphasis on refined lighting techniques; and Dean Collins' "People to Products—the Shade of Difference of Light," covering light characteristics, technique and application for portrait and commercial photography from an illustrative approach.

Many leading professional photographers will be participating in programs, workshops and print judging events, including Sherman Hines, Arthur Heitzman, Ken Whitmire, Frank Cricchio, Wayne Thom, Marvel Nelson, Ellen Bak, Victor Avila, Richard Atamian, Mark Beatie, Donald Condit, Paulo Takahashi, Fred English, William Martinelli, Raymond Conkling, Peter Stackpole, Al Weber, Oliver Gagliani, Frank Spadarella, Tom Vano, Joe Butts, Robert Pierce, Susanne Kaspar, John and Trish Perrin, and Christopher Der Manuelian. These are photographers whose work combines mastery of materials with artistic vision.



"Separate Realities" photo by Duane Sauro is part of the Western States Photographic Symposium and Print Competition's Exhibit of Photographic Prints 4/20&21

More than a thousand prints in color and black and white will be on display in the Firehouse on Sunday, April 20, and Monday, April 21, from 10am to 5pm. There will also be an exhibit of works by Bay Area professional photographers, entitled "People, Places, and Things," in the Fort Mason Center Lobby, Building A, from April 1 through 28, Monday through Saturday, 9am to 5pm. The general public is invited to view these exhibits. Admission is free.

For information on the conference, call 626-2525.
